Dayananda Sagar University (DSU) is built on a foundation of excellence and change. Our ability to transform lives and society underpins who we are and what we do. DSU has been providing leadership to society and its institutions, identifying the direction of future challenges.

We have various initiatives and support structures in place to ensure that our students get the help and guidance they need to graduate on time, and that they are fully prepared to access the job market or start their own businesses in the world beyond university.

Once again, our educators and support staff have done remarkably well to deliver such a highly regarded student experience in 2022. We have to place the best interests of our students first. DSU has always been a forward-looking, progressive university, and we are working hard to create significant longer-term opportunities for the communities we serve. The year 2022-23 was distinguished by a number of key events, critical outcomes and major successes.

Throughout this period DSU continued to develop new education delivery strategies through innovations in pedagogy and practice for this institution's students and others. It is through the pursuit of excellence, equity and inclusion, that we will create a harmony of voices and ethos, and a shared vision for the future.

Likewise, the quality of our teaching and student experience was recognized by State and National Ranking agencies. Our graduate employment remains among one of the best in the sector, and we continue to innovate to make sure that our students have the very best prospects when they move into their careers.

Let us continue to strive for excellence and remember to embrace change as we look forward to a lasting legacy.

Dr. D. Premachandra Sagar

Pro Chancellor

It is gratifying to see all the dreams manifesting into a robust and vibrant University. It is the commitment to not only keep up the past glories but also to steer the institution on the path to new directions in keeping with the demands of the new times.

The last few years have changed the nature of demands from an education of higher learning with unprecedented developments in sciences and opening up of the boundaries of the subjects into interdisciplinary nature. The New Education Policy 2020 reflects the shift in vision regarding education from the creation of a resource pool to a path of holistic development of the person.

We have entered the 9th year of academic journey and during the last eight years the University has attained many milestones and is emerging as an institution of quality learning with integrated academic programmes. We strive to provide an environment for their all-round development. Their success reflects upon the perception of the people regarding the institution.

The University puts in sustained efforts to create brand equity and offer leadership by way of differentiation in all its intellectual pursuits. The University marches ahead to attain its mission through a goal of blending contemporary knowledge with skills and values in true spirit to groom high caliber thinkers; The University will only succeed in its vision in the years to come if the students can achieve their potential not just in terms of academic excellence but also in co-curricular areas of sports, culture and art.

The University continues to stand tall and true to its mission to shape and nurture its students to blossom into responsible citizens. We have some of the best minds in academics as the faculty of the University who have brought credibility to the University in research and teaching.

 Even as we foray into the future, we will continue to listen deeply and deliberately to the world around us; seek mentors who will further shape our vision and grow our community so we are part of the larger collective of a universe waiting to build a future generation. To be closely associated with other segments of society the University executed Memorandum of Understanding for mutual benefit leading to the socio-economic development of the country.

Prof. K.N. Balasubramanya Murthy

Vice Chancellor

It is a matter of immense pride for me to be part of a vibrant DSU family. I joined DSU at the beginning of 2023. I am impressed with the students' quality and the faculty members' capabilities. More importantly, we all have the vision of our Pro Chancellor Dr Premchandra Sagar, to guide us to an even better future. I have seldom seen. upper management so responsive to any idea that would improve students' knowledge and impart new skill sets. Our faculty members are involved in cutting edge research, and their work is published in reputed international and national Journals.

DSU has moved to its new campus. The architecture of the new campus and the teaching infrastructure is world-class. With these facilities, DSU students and faculty members will get an opportunity to pursue their goals and make our Pro Chancellor's dream a reality.

Dr. Shivakumar Shastri
Pro Vice Chancellor

Strengthening the Research Ecosystem @ DSU

"India is a powerhouse of talent with great academic potential! We graduate more scientists and engineers every year than the population of several countries. As teachers, we have a great responsibility and owe it to this young community to help them achieve their potential. Why do our students seek to go out of the country to pursue higher education and research? What is it that they look for beyond our borders that is not available to them here?"

"Academics" means different things in different cultures. In many countries, "Academics" means Teaching & Research. For a generation, "academics" in India has come to mean "classroom teaching" based on lecture notes or PowerPoint slides. Here, "purely academic" means lecture-based delivery without any hands-on component. We must move away from "purely academic teaching" to an approach that nurtures a problem-solving mindset, a culture of curiosity, and a spirit of embracing failure in our students. When such qualities are cultivated, "Academic" will mean "Serious, Thoughtful, and Rigorous". As we aspire to become globally recognized, let us use our terminology carefully and consistent with the world. Such a change will motivate our youth to pursue academics in India.

Academic Research is a serious, thoughtful, and rigorous activity that is carried out by people with advanced degrees. Such activities result in high-quality publications, intellectual discussions, collaborations, and proposals for grants from government agencies and foundations. Industry projects are focused on the creation of products and intellectual property and are carried out by engineers, staff, and technicians with various levels of training. Patents that result from academic activities are useful only when they are monetized and licensed for translation to practice. Publishing a patent by an academic group has little value and is merely exposing good ideas to others who can file first and claim credit for the work. To become globally recognized, let us realign our values so it is consistent with the dynamic global village.

Academic Research is The Gold Standard. Such investigations are funded by research awards and the outcomes are based on rigorous analysis after many years of investigation. Usually, it would require industry teams, with hundreds of members, several years to fully implement the results and outcomes of academic research. The RISC architecture, several features of the Intel processor, classical AI techniques, and the networking stack are examples. The mRNA vaccine that saved thousands of lives recently during the pandemic is another example. Product-focused industry activities are well-defined and short-term objectives (usually, few months). In contrast, academic investigations are long-term, evolutionary, and last for many years. There has been an exception over the last ten years where industry has led research in AI and ML areas, and advanced materials. Unfortunately, in India, for a segment, "academic research" appears to mean "speculation that no one else had bothered to make". These speculations are published, in paid journals and venues, at a rate of three to five papers per year without respect for the process of investigation. Such papers are not accepted as high-quality publications, not cited often, and only cited by friends and family. Since these speculations are baseless, ordinary extensions of industry projects appear to be of much superior quality "research". Even though some accreditation agencies give credit for consulting in the research category, consulting cannot be considered as research even though it has an important role as a source of supplemental income for the faculty or the institution. Entrepreneurship is merely housed in research divisions for administrative purposes and cannot be considered as research. To become globally recognized, let us act in a manner that the world would appreciate our talents and help us to retain our youth to create new opportunities for the nation.

High-quality Academic Research should be our aspirational goal. Excellent researchers ARE the best teachers; they keep their knowledge fresh, advance knowledge or the state-of-the-practice, and maintain strong professional networks in multiple academic institutions and industry. They bring a culture of excellence to their teaching. Academic Research is the creation of new knowledge or techniques to advance practice that result in high-quality publications. High-quality publications are cited by other researchers and result in new academic collaborations. Collaborative teams attract grant funding from agencies such as DST, SERB, ISRO, DRDO, AICTE, etc., and high- quality research students through external JRF and SRF awards. Investigations based on such activities improve publications and citations, and hence institutional ranking.

To become globally recognized, let us focus on excellence in academic research and strengthen the ecosystem so that our youth can remain here to pursue their dreams and advance the nation.

INTERNAL QUALITY ASSURANCE CELL (IQAC)

Dr Subrahmanya S. Katte
Director, IQAC

Dayananda Sagar University established the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) during 2018, and has appointed a full-time Director. IQAC in order to plan, implement and oversee quality enhancement initiatives. Two faculty members, Dr. Gayathri K M and Mr. Sandeep M J were deputed to IQAC from their respective departments under IQAC during 2022-23. Additionally, each Department / School / College under DSU has a designated IQAC Coordinator, who is involved in the quality, ranking, and accreditation related activities.

The IQAC lays down procedures and standards, conducts sensitization events and periodic Academic and Administrative Audits (AAA). The activities of the IQAC are carried out online with the help of an indigenously developed web interface using open-source content management framework. The web interface serves the following: Internal filing of NAAC related data for Self-Study Report, and data for AAA, thus digitizing the contents students' feedback survey for effectiveness of teaching-learning process, and Stakeholders' feedback survey for curricula design.

During 2022-23, IQAC has completed the Academic and Administrative Audit of all Departments / Schools / Colleges under DSU for academic year 2021-22. Based on the online data entry made and the supporting documents provided by the entities and based on the departmental visits by the panel for verification, the grading for each metric was made, involving IQAC and an expert external to the department. By following the norms of NAAC, the criterion-wise GPA, CGPA, and the letter Grades are announced. With respect to each of 90+ metrics relevant, an action plan was handed over to the departments with a description of the metric, expected data, status of the data, expected documentation, and the status of documentation provided.

During June 5-7, 2023, IQAC organized an Academic and Administrative Audit of all Departments / Schools / Colleges under DSU involving three renowned external experts:
1. Dr. Y. Narasimhulu, former Vice Chancellor, Rayalaseema University
2. Dr. Aloysius Sequeira, Former Registrar, NITK
3. Dr. Konijeti Ramakrishna, Dean – Quality, KLUF

The report from the panel, along with the recommended action plan was handed over to every concerned entity of DSU. This external audit helped DSU extensively to prepare for the NAAC PTV.

The IQAC, during 2022-23, also completed all processes involved in accreditation by NAAC. This involved submission of IIQA and SSR online to NAAC via HEI Portal. DSU has successfully completed SSS, DVV and PTV, submitted all compliance documents to NAAC, and has been waiting for the announcement of results from NAAC. Dr. Sunil S. More, Dean, SBAS provided extensive support to IQAC for the PTV process.

With respect to the immediate future, IQAC has plans to implement a unified data entry portal, from which all ranking and accreditation related up to date data may be extracted and the progress of each entity of DSU may be analyzed regularly.

DSU ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Prof. Visveswar Mavathur
Director

It gives me great pleasure to bring to you a report on the progress we have achieved on the alumni relations front, at DSU.

During this academic year, we initiated the registration of the DSU Alumni Council (DSUAC) with the Registrar of Societies, Government of Karnataka. The process is complete, and DSUAC is now a duly registered association permitted to operate as per the relevant bye laws.

The Vision and Mission statements of DSUAC were crafted after internal deliberations on focus. The official Vision statement now reads "To nurture in our Alumni a sense of community and life-long bonding with the University". The Mission statement reads "To undertake programmes that promote alumni-student interaction, a culture of sharing, and to cultivate a durable relationship between Alumni and the University".

The first major event of DSU, bringing together all its schools and departments, was held on June 10th, 2023. We celebrated the World Environment Day, at our Harohalli main campus. The event was attended by our alumni across all schools and all batches of DSU, apart from faculty coordinators and leadership. The Presidential Address by Hon. Vice Chancellor outlined the medium- and long-term vision we have for the alumni relationship programme of our university.

DSU alumni across all seven graduated batches and all the schools, were in attendance. We started the event with tree planting to mark our dedication to the environment. Our eminent guests for the day were Mr Ananth Hedge (Ex-Chairman, Karnataka Biodiversity Board, Govt. of Karnataka) and Ms Arathi Manay (Managing Trustee, Puttenahalli Lake Trust). They spoke passionately about the need to protect forests and urban environments, and also described their own experiences. Alumni conducted a cultural programme with a nature theme. The event concluded with lunch for all attendees. This event received strongly positive feedback from all stakeholders, and was seen as an important first step towards building a vibrant alumni ecosystem for our university.

Beyond the all-school event, several school-specific events were also conducted by the schools. Some examples are the alumni-led student mentoring series initiated by Computer Science and Technology department, the book donation drive and guest speaking sessions conducted by the alumni of Computer Science and Engineering department.

A newsletter dedicated to alumni was announced at the event, and the first issue was released in the end of August 2023. This quarterly newsletter is named AlmaSphere, and it stitches together all the threads of activity and information relevant to useful to our globally dispersed alumni, and the university itself. It contains updates on their career achievements, awards and recognition, higher education, personal milestones, social work updates, cultural events and performances, hobbies, etc. The first edition contained several articles written by alumni documenting how their time at DSU shaped their careers and lives.

With the progress achieved during this year, momentum has been established for DSUAC's continued evolution to greater strength and relevance.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

Dr Udaya Kumar Reddy K R
Dean

Teaching-Learning, Research and Collaborations with reputed industries have been a hallmark of School of Engineering and in this issue, you will find stories that reveal the results of those connections.

The engagement at national and international level is a cornerstone of the vision for the School of Engineering Our aim is to produce graduate engineers for society through excellence and innovation in technical education and research. This attract scholars from all over India through strategic partnerships and to develop technical solutions locally that can be exported globally to impact the world's economy and quality of life.

The School of Engineering is in the directions of uniquely getting positioned to develop and implement meaningful solutions that make a sustained impact. As an institution of higher learning, we embrace the free exchange of ideas with a belief that we are better and stronger when we can discuss information vigorously and bring our life experiences — our most authentic selves — as we apply scientific principles to solve major problems.

Our faculty are thriving and continuing to make substantial contributions to solving longer-term challenges that affect humankind. They have forged ahead with research, education and public service. Professors in various engineering departments have found success in their domains. Several other faculty members are leading the way in their fields.

In education, we will invest in faculty and staff committed to innovating in the classroom to enhance learning. We will integrate leadership, ethics, and professional development education throughout our undergraduate and master's degree programs.

We will continue our cutting-edge research, along with mentorship of both undergraduate and graduate students involved in our research efforts.

I am proud to present this new issue, which celebrates the amazing ingenuity of our School of Engineering community and illustrates the impact that we continue to shape the careers of our students. This edition of engineering report introduces you to just a few of the ways we are demonstrating our commitment to this vision. Beyond these pages, there are many more stories.

Our alumni around the globe are important members of this community.

SCHOOL OF COMMERCE AND MANAGEMENT STUDIES (SCMS)

Capt. Prof. A. Nagaraj Subbarao
Dean

Every year, several young people earn management degrees from Business Schools in India, and the degree is seen as a path to more sustainable careers with higher remuneration. Increasingly, however, executives and academics have raised questions about how management schools can best add value to the business community in the future.

The impact of technology on business, in particular and life, in general, has encouraged SCMS to bring technology to our curriculum and expose our students to the changing facets of the industry, be it blockchain technology or artificial intelligence. Our programs at the school rest on five foundational pillars – creativity, entrepreneurship, leadership, problem-solving and technology. These aspects are present in the DNA of all our activities.

The industry has moved from the complicated to the complex, where most problems have no precedence and need out-of-the-box solutions. Also, industry has increasingly integrated with society and the planet. Students at SCMS are taught to be ethical and aware of larger goals like the United Nations enunciated Sustainable Development Goals, which promote an equitable and fair world for all its people.

At the School of Commerce & Management Studies, DSU, Bengaluru, graduates of management education programs enter the workplace eager to apply new tools, concepts, and theories they have learned. They also understand that however frustrating, those elegant models and theories often only sometimes fit the complexities of actual practice and managing people. So, they need to be innovative to deal with highly complex work. The school offers well-crafted programs such as an Executive MBA program for working professionals, a full-time MBA program and undergraduate programs in BBA and B. Com, as well as cutting-edge certificate programs. The school's doctoral program is also gaining popularity as our prowess in research grows with an outstanding pool of scholarly professors.

Management programs at the School of Commerce & Management Studies are embellished with several non-academic activities like simulations, clubs, international cultural tours and industry interaction. In recognizing our brilliant programs and academic excellence, the school was ranked as the twelfth-best emerging Business School in India in 2021 and 2022 and one of the finest management schools in the international city of Bengaluru. The school has, in successive years, fulfilled its admission potential and has placed over ninety-five per cent of its MBA graduates, making it a most sought-after program.

The world is literally in the palm of your hand. So long as you are holding a cell phone. But the question, right off the bat, is: would you rather show, or would you rather be shown? Would you rather influence, or would you rather be influenced? Would you rather rule, or would you rather be ruled … over?

Make no mistake, we are living in the future envisioned by the 20th century writers where, well, cars still may not fly, but the big brother is definitely watching us. You no longer can choose to remain incommunicado; that is not an option. You no longer can choose to remain in the stands; they are empty. Because everybody is playing the game.

But who is winning?
Communication isn't about words. It's about rhetoric. Like with everything, there is such a thing as the politics of communication. Without that ace up your sleeve, it's a blind man's bluff. And the medium will remain just that. A medium.

At the College of Journalism and Mass Communication (CJMC), it isn't about the degree. That's just ink on paper. It is about mastering communication. And mastering communication involves mastering media or communication channels – be it online, TV or print – because without understanding the nuances of media, communication will be just a cry echoing in the wilderness.

At the same time, CJMC isn't about just journalism and communication. It is also about a multitude of opportunities.

The 4-year BA (Hons) programme exposes the student to 8 different career pathways: Journalism, Video Production, Advertising & Marketing Communications, Social Media Marketing, Media Research, English Literature, Psychology and Theatre. After receiving basic training in all critical modules over the first two years, the student will have to choose 1 of the 3 specializations and major in that area. A two-month-long internship at the end of the 3rd year – which we will help the students in getting job offers! The 4th year will help the students to round off theoretical and practical skills with research skills.

Always remember, knowing is one thing. Communicating is quite another.

TEACHING, LEARNING AND CURRICULAR ASPECTS.

DSU has a structured procedure for developing curricula and syllabi for all programs offered, through Departmental Curriculum Committees, Boards of Studies, and Academic Council. These Bodies comprise external academicians, industrial experts, research scientists, and teachers contributing to the curricula design process, and do consider inputs from the stakeholders, with feedback-form and action taken reports being hosted on website. The curricula are reviewed and updated at least once a year, in view of latest technological, social, local, regional, and global developments and trends, and the requirements of competitive examinations. The curricula aim to ensure that the students acquire fundamental concepts as well as skills via hands-on experience, with a fine balance.

The curricula have scope for inbuilt laboratory components, mini and major projects, internships, special topics, reflection notes, research paper critique, and capstone projects often industries. The courses are categorized into several types – basic and applied sciences, professional core and electives, open electives, and liberal studies, with a balanced distribution, addressing the requirements of NEP-2020. As DSU is relatively young, syllabi revisions were carried out for over 85% of programs during last five years, with implementation of CBCS for almost all (98%) programs, subject to applicable SRAs. Over 70% courses offered across programs are the new courses introduced during last five years, and it is ensured that more than 80% of courses offered do have focus on employability / entrepreneurship / skill development. The cross-cutting issues relevant to professional ethics, gender, human values, environment and sustainability are addressed through the curricula, with 58 regular courses addressing these issues, in addition to the academic's co curricular and extracurricular activities, events, workshops, seminars, guest lectures, and voluntary societal outreach programs. Over 100 value added courses have been offered during last five years, with about 1/3rd students being benefited. More than one by third of students on rolls undertake field / research projects and internships in industry or elsewhere. Structured feedback for design and review of syllabi are taken from all stakeholders through feedback form.

DSU not only recognizes the need for variable paced teaching-learning processes for different types of learners, but also implements effective strategies to add-on value and augment the capabilities of each type of learners. The DSU maintains healthy student - teacher ratio and each student has assigned to a mentor, where mentoring is carried out on ERP.

All regular theory courses, hands-on laboratory components, project-based learning, simulations, programming, or usage of a modern tool are integrated at the curricula design stage itself, thus offering a wide scope for experimental, participative, and student centric learning. A commercial ERP is being used, in addition to Moodle LMS for academics and administration. Virtual labs are conducted, as DSU is a nodal centre of Virtual Labs under MHRD initiative. The Examination Cell uses a fully automated software for semester-end examinations management as well as digital evaluations - Ion EMS and Ion DVS, for all activities of examination and evaluation system. The commercial online assessment platform, Eklavvya, is also used for the conduction of AI facial recognition based, automatically proctored, CIA and semester end examinations.

OBE approach is adopted and developed in consultation with stakeholders, and outcomes are publicized through the web and other means. The evaluation of the attainments of outcomes are done at various levels - course coordinators, program coordinators, Departmental Advisory Board, and at the institutional level.

DSU has made an attempt to follow the trends that are globally implemented and proven to be effective in addressing the teaching, learning and curricular aspects. The trends are delivering effective change, embedding employability, transforming assessment, enterprise and entrepreneurship in higher education, student engagement through partnership, education for sustainable development, technology enhanced learning and mental wellbeing in higher education.

Faculty at DSU are striving to inculcate the above attributes in all its functional aspects of curriculum by constantly seeking advice from the members of the board of studies, besides adopting pedagogy that includes all the above-mentioned attributes

Dr. Rishikesha T Krishnan's address to the graduates

At the outset, may I offer my congratulations and best wishes to all graduating students. You have worked hard to reach here today. May all the hard work you have put in translate into successful jobs and careers.

I specially acknowledge the support you have received from your parents and families. Though you may be inclined to think that what you have achieved is a result of your own efforts, please pause for a moment to reflect on their contribution to what and where you are today.

You are graduating into a world of opportunities. India is one of the bright spots in the world economy. Many forecasts suggest that India will continue to grow to become the 3rd largest economy in the world. India has to grow if it is to meet all our dreams and aspirations. We have a young population to which all of you belong; dynamism and momentum in the economic and policy space; we are a leader in digital public goods like a aadhaar and UPI. This is a wonderful time to enter the workplace.

Yet, these opportunities will not be equally available to all. The better opportunities will be accessible to those of you who are well prepared and enterprising. There is a broad consensus that learning is no longer a one-time activity. Life-long learners will be much better placed to address the new opportunities that will arise.

Clearly, the nature of work, and of organizations is changing. Work from home which used to be a rare exception is today a norm in many organizations. The Covid period showed us that even some of the most complex factories could be run largely remotely with very few people on site. Across industries, firms are undergoing digital transformation. AI has been on the horizon for some time, but ChatGPT has democratized the use of AI by all of us.

What this means is that you will need to be adaptable. I would like to underline that learning is not over with your degree from Dayananda Sagar University. Earlier, many people stuck to one organization and one line of work across their careers. You might have seen this with your parents. Some others moved on through multiple jobs and roles, and across organizations. Now individuals go through multiple careers, each one requiring different skillsets. While speaking to our alumni from IIM Bangalore, I find that many of them are now into their 3rd career. Managing these transitions well is important.

Several people today work in the gig economy. This is true not only of taxi drivers and plumbers, but also trained professionals. A common feature across gig workers is that to succeed their skills need to have currency and value. This means learning new skills as well as sharpening old ones.

But whatever path you choose, excellence and hard work matter. So does a strong work ethic. An important component of this is the ability to deliver on whatever you promise - in time, and at the quality level required.

Some of you may have heard about Subroto Bagchi, one of the founders of the IT services firm Mindtree. Subroto not only contributed to the creation of an outstanding software company, but has also gone on to make a significant difference to the skilling of youth in Odisha as Chair of the Odisha Skill Development Authority. He has also made a very generous donation to the Indian Institute of Science to enable the setting up of a hospital and medical school at IISc. He is thus an outstanding role model for all of us.

Subroto has some excellent advice for all of us in his book The Professional. According to him a profession is more than earning a livelihood, just another way of getting ahead in life, building and seeking material comfort or an educational qualification. It is not just landing a job, a coveted posting, or a series of accelerated promotions & raises.

In fact, he describes being a professional as nothing short of a religion. It consists of the ability to work unsupervised, the ability to certify the completion of one's work and always displaying the highest standards of ethical behaviour. He underlines that integrity precedes professional competence. I hope all of you will take Subroto Bagchi's advice seriously and ensure that you give integrity the greatest importance in everything that you do.

While India's economic prospects look good, we must also remember that we face several challenges in the form of poverty, and uneven access to health and education. I hope that many of you will during your lifetime make significant contributions towards addressing these challenges.

In this context, I would like to underline the importance of social sensitivity. Please keep connected to the broader environment, to the place or region to which your family belongs, to the institutions where you have studied. As graduates from a leading institution, you automatically belong to a privileged group. Don't wait to give back to society and the community, make it a part of your life right now. Identify causes or organizations you relate to and keep aside some time for them. You will find that this not only helps others, but adds meaning to your own existence.

I urge you to identify and reach out to good role models. These could be from your college, your family, or the organisation where you work. Take inspiration from them. At the same time, please stay away from people who are negative or divisive.

In this tough world, you will soon realise that stamina and resilience are important. You can't have stamina and resilience unless you maintain good physical and mental health. Find ways of keeping physically fit – otherwise health problems can suddenly hit you some years down the line just as you are beginning to soar in your career.

I am particularly concerned about mental health, particularly after the pandemic. Maintain friendships and social relationships – and I mean in person, not on Instagram or WhatsApp alone. Keep connected to your family and others you care for. Be part of professional and social organizations. The metaverse may be exciting but humans are wired to be social beings.

Congratulations to all the medal winners and awardees. But, if you are not among them, don't worry. At my college silver jubilee reunion, I found that the people who had done the most interesting things were not necessarily those who had won the academic medals. Some people peak early, others mature slowly!

Once again, my best wishes to all of you. JAI HIND.

Dr. D. Hemachandra Sagar
Chancellor,
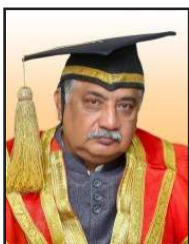

Heartfelt congratulations to all the graduates of 2022.

I am delighted for more reasons than one this convocation.

With the addition of medicine, design and many new schools and programmes we are now a fully modern, multi-disciplinary university. There is little that can escape the grasp of a student who enters our sprawling campuses.

At this important juncture, we have the opportunity to celebrate the success of our dear graduates, postgraduates and doctorates on the occasion of the sixth convocation of Dayananda Sagar University.

The university has tried its best to give each one of them a splendid and rewarding experience. Our hearts anticipate that as they leave the portals of this institution and step into a new challenging world, you will look forward to not merely adapt to it, but to change it positively in several unparalleled ways.

We foresee your contributions to an entire range of disciplines, whether science or humanities, even as you will likely achieve your own dreams. We have little doubt that the world will hear more and more about your demonstrated abilities, especially those that bear fruition in solving our biggest problems, whether poverty or climate change. We also wish you enter highly stimulating research and work environments that your innovative approaches so richly deserve.

You may have earned your degree in the wonderful precincts of this university. It is now your responsibility to make the society outside equally wonderful.

I wish you all the very best.

Dr. D. Premachandra Sagar
Pro Chancellor,

Even as this convocation marks the end of one era, a new buoyant one lies in wait, generating new hopes and new opportunities. Every young graduate is without doubt, stepping into an era of great, widespread disruption, but confident and fully equipped, not only deal to with it but to be able to disrupt the world in a substantial measure themselves.

Whether it is our students or our teaching fraternity, this is indeed a memorable inflexion point for all of us. A time to savor its past and a time to welcome the opportunities that lie ahead. A time to celebrate accomplishments. A time to reflect on how and where you are likely to deploy them most fruitfully for your own self, society and industry.

A word of appreciation for the faculty and your alma mater that lives in the glory of your progress is in order. They have strived to make adults out of countless boys and girls, lived in the shadow of professional progress of their pupils; influenced their values and their character, without their own knowing perhaps. They deserve congratulations for their reinvention and resilience in coping with dynamic and disruptive environment we live in. On behalf of the management of the Dayananda Sagar University, it gives me immense satisfaction in acknowledging their role.

It is indeed a matter of privilege for all of us to join together to congratulate our young graduates. We encourage you to utilize the knowledge and training that you have received here to contribute to the wisdom of the world that is bound to welcome you with open arms.

Let the old order change, yielding place to the new.
